PILLOWS FOR THE BABY.

Pretty Embroidered Designs on Linen and Lawn.

Four Models Alike suited to the Carriage and the Crib—All of Them Are Fit for the Nicest Tot That Ever Lived.

Nothing in all the wide range of needlework is more popular, or, indeed, better than the cushioned covers, to which there seems literally to be no limit.

There was a time when one pillow, or, at least, two pillows, were thought ample for a single couch. But we of the present demand an overwhelming supply and a number that runs, say, up into the tens. Even the babies have caught the craze, or their mammas have done so in their name, and the infant of the present has pillows of many sorts.

The carriage has a goodly supply, and the tiny bed has its bit of dainty work on which the wee head rests, and is good enough to require a chapter of its own, but for the present we have to do with its pillows only, which

FORGET-ME-NOTS AND ROSEBUDS.

swell the number demanded by the tyrants who rule our hearts and homes.
No color can ever be so good for infants' use as a pure, unsullied white.
The colored silks and the colored linens that serve admirably well for mattress folk are out of place in the baby's outfit.

The four models which the illustrations show are alike suited to the carriage and the crib. They are all filled with the softest down, and any one of them is fit for the best loved infant that this world holds.

The forget-me-nots, which somehow always seem appropriate and always good for the babies' pillows and the babies' spreads, are worked upon white bosom linen.

The blossoms themselves are all worked in their own tender blue, but with lilacelle of the best unfading dye.
Each center is represented by a single

OVER COLORED SLIPS.

French knot of yellow, and the leaves and stems are worked with olive green.
The only really peculiar fact about this special design is the color used for the tiny buds that tip each spray.
These in place of being worked with blue, as they ordinarily are, were copied direct from nature, and show a faint old pink tint.

The cover is made with a broad hemstitched hem on all four sides. The opening is at the back, and closes with buttons and buttonholes. Stray blossoms are scattered along the hem and a frill of fine tulle lace completes the whole.

The embroidered linen should be laundried before the lace is whipped off.

But the baises and the pinks shown upon the pillows in the second illustration are worked upon sheer linen lawn and are used, respectively, over slips of pink and blue silk, which give them a cast of color, but they are of themselves pure, untinted white.

The daisies are worked with cream white silk and have shadings of pale green gray. The centers are fine French knots, done with yellow, and the stems, calyxes and leaves are all olive green. The ribbon is blue, of the same shade as the silk slip, and is worked solid with a single thread of filoselle. The edge of the cover is finished with a fine frill of the lawn.

The pinks are all worked in old pink, and the slip is of the same shade. The combination so formed of soft, delicious pink with the tender, pale olive green of the leaves is effective. Like the daisy pillow, it is finished with a frill.

The pillow which shows rosebuds and is given in the first drawing is made like the first, of fine white linen.
The flowers are tied with pale pink ribbon. It has a broad hem cat-stitched with pale olive green, like that used for the leaves, and the ribbon is made to twine about in graceful curves.

All the work is solid, and all is done with a single thread of filoselle.—N.
Y. Recorder.

Summer Table Napery.

Summer tablecloths are, many of them, fetching enough to warrant the extravagance of a purchase now and then. The new, variously-colored linen forms the loveliest table cloths.
Old pink linen, cream, orange, gray-blue or Dresden blue, when worked with white linen thread in delicate designs of roses, minnows, arabesques or forget-me-nots, merits the admiration of hostess and guests.

To Drive Away Mosquitoes.

Kerosene oil sprinkled by means of a whitewash brush along the fences is said to drive away mosquitoes.

A HOME BODICE.

SHYLOCK PROPITIATED.

And Bill Shakespeare Shown to Be a Man of Snap.

Once during the days of his early struggles Edwin Booth was "barnstorming" down in Virginia at a place called Lee's Landing. The improvised theater was a tobacco warehouse, and it was crowded by the planters for miles round. Booth and his companions had arranged to take the weekly steamer expected late that night and between the acts were busy packing up. The play was the "Merchant of Venice," and they were just going on for the trial scene when they heard the whistles, and the manager came running in to say that the steamer had arrived and would leave again in half an hour. As that was the only chance for a week of getting away, they were in a terrible quandary.

"If we explain matters," said the manager, "the audience will think they are being cheated, and we shall have a free fight.
The only thing is for you fellows to get up some sort of natural life impromptu ending of the piece and ring down the curtain. Go right ahead, ladies and gentlemen, and take your cue from Ned there," and he hurried away to get the luggage aboard.

Ned, of course, was Booth, who resolved to rely upon the ignorance of the Virginians of those days to pull him through.
So when old George Ruggles—who was playing Shylock—began to sharpen his knife on his boot, Booth walked straight up to him and said solemnly: "You are bound to have the flesh, are you?"

"You bet your life," said Ruggles.
"Now, I'll make you one more offer," continued Booth. "In addition to this bag of ducats I'll throw in two kegs of nigger-head terbacker, a shotgun and a couple of the best coon dogs in the state."

"I'm blowed if I don't do it," responded Shylock, much to the approbation of the audience, who were tobacco raisers and coon hunters to a man. "And to show that there are no ill feelings," put in Portia, "we'll wind up with a Virginia reel."

When the company got aboard the steamer, the captain, who had witnessed the conclusion of the play, remarked:
"I'd like to see the whole of that play some time, gentlemen. I'm blessed if I thought that fellow Shakespeare had so much snap in him."—Life's Calendar.

Seeing the Editor.

The office boy, who was also guardian of the gate of The Occidentalist, was sunning himself lazily in front of the office when a rough looking citizen, with his pantalons in his boots and a gun in his coat pocket, approached the portcullis.

"Can I see the editor?" he asked in a voice that sounded like a bass drum out of tune.

"Do you want him to see you?" asked the guardian significantly.

"I don't care if he does or not so long as I can see him."

This did not strike the guardian propietiously.

"What do you want to see him about?" he asked on another tack.

"About four minutes and a half," was the rather equivocal reply.

"Is it personal?" inquired the boy, disregarding the ancient form of witicism in the answer.

"Yes."

"Want to lick him?"

"No. Want to pay my subscription for last year and the year to come."

The boy jumped up. He hadn't moved previously.

"Walk right in," he said, shoving the door open, "walk right in. But say, mister, don't spring it on him sudden. He ain't used to it, and something might happen."—Detroit Free Press.

Told by Mark Twain.

Mark Twain, the other day, told a writer for the Buffalo Courier a story which illustrates the point that all clerks in bookstores, alert and generally accurate as they are, are not a final authority in literary matters. Mrs. Clemens and a friend recently went into a bookstore in New York and called for a copy of "Taine's Ancient Regime."

"Reg. pardon," said the clerk. "What book did you say?"

Mrs. Clemens repeated the author and title of the book. Going to the rear of the store, the clerk soon returned, only to inquire:

"May I ask you to repeat the name of the author?"

"Why, Taine," replied Mrs. Clemens, becoming a little annoyed.

Assuming an air of superior knowledge and looking at his customer with a sympathetic smile, he remarked:

"Pardon me, madam, but you have the name a little wrong. You mean Taine—not Taine."

A Hint.

Hazely—By George! I can't understand it. My credit must be gone. Business men don't seem to think I'll be able to pay.

Mrs. Hazely—Perhaps they'd think so if they saw your wife dress better.—Chicago Tribune.

Old Sayings.

As poor as a church mouse,
As thin as a rail,
As fat as a porpoise,
As rough as a gale,
As brave as a lion,
As sly as a fox,
As bright as a waxen,
As weak as a rat,
As proud as a peacock,
As sly as a fox,
As mad as a March hare,
As strong as an ox,
As fair as a lily,
As empty as air,
As rich as was Croesus, As cross as a bear,

As pure as an angel,
As neat as a pin,
As smart as a steel trap,
As ugly as sin,
As dead as a door nail,
As white as a sheet,
As fat as a butcher,
As red as a beet,
As round as an apple,
As black as your hat,
As brown as a berry,
As blind as a bat,
As mean as a miser,
As full as a tickle,
As plump as a pumpernick, As sharp as a steel,

As deep as a well,

As light as a feather,
As hard as a rock,
As stiff as a poker,
As calm as a clock,
As green as a gosling,
As brisk as a bee,
And now let me stop,
Lest you weary of me.

That Tired Feeling.

Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for such a condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, carefully prepared from the best ingredients. 25c.

For instance, Mrs. Chas. Rogers, of Bay City, Mich., accidentally spilled scalding water over her little boy. She promptly applied Dr. Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, giving instant relief. It's a wonderfully good salve for burns, bruises, sores, and a sure cure for Piles. J. K. Jones.
